“Campaign finance reform had completely changed the rules of the game. By limiting the amount of money candidates and political parties could raise and spend, the new law had seriously weakened candidates—and all but killed political parties.”

Interlude: 2004-2008

- In 2004, Left takes over both CO legislative chambers.
- By 2008, Left takes over state-wide offices, U.S. Congressional delegation, and electoral college votes.
- Four megadonors fuel the engine of victories from 2004 onward.
- This Colorado Democracy Alliance of donors is model for national version in 2005.

Re: New Thinking on 2012 Election and Beyond

Three Points

- 1. Winning the 2012 presidential election is everything
- 2. Only way to accomplish #1 ...
again give (c)(3) grantees millions to register & GOTV
($84 M budget: OSF, Ford, Carnegie, Democracy Alliance, etc.)
- 3. Long-term solution:
election reforms like ending voter ID laws, automatic registration, early voting, etc.

“Because the tax code allowed nonprofit organizations to run registration and turnout drives as long as they did not push a particular candidate, organizing ‘historically disenfranchised’ communities (as Carnegie described them) became a backdoor approach to ginning up Democratic votes outside the campaign finance laws that applied to candidates, parties, and political action committees.”
